The Sydney Cardiovascular Symposium is Australia's premier cardiovascular research event, now in its eighth year, is jointly hosted by the Heart Research Institute (HRI), Victor Chang Cardiac Research Institute (VCCRI), The Westmead Institute of Medical Research and The George Institute for Global Health. This theme for 2025 is Innovations in Cardiovascular Science with a focus on understanding and targeting the intersection of vascular biology, cardiac biology and organ cross-talk. E/MCR have been incorporated into the main program. This approach will have multiple benefits for the NSW cardiovascular community. First, it will guarantee a platform for the promotion of E/MCR work, with international leaders in cardiovascular biology in the audience. Second, the opportunity to present at a high-profile symposium will bring individual benefits for E/MCR speakers to improve their CVs and increase competitiveness for funding. Third, the E/MCR committee have managed E/MCR components of the program with guidance from the Symposium Organising Committee, which provides significant learning opportunities for the E/MCR committee. Lastly, this Symposium will facilitate breaking down the silos of basic, clinical, and public health research as well as between institutions and foster a genuinely collaborative NSW cardiovascular research community.	5,000.00
